Vienna telephone girls are required to change their dresses and wear a uniform when on duty, as the dirt they brought in from the streets affected the instruments. Their costume is a dark skirt and waist, with sleeves striped black and yellow, the Austrian national colors.

The marriageable maidens of Bridgeport Conn., propose, by combination, organization, and union in action, to create a monopoly in marriageable women, and thus regulate the matrimonial market on a better basis. The girls have organized what they have named "The Anti-Chair-Waiting Society of Marriageable Maidens," and will limit the supply of entertainers for the frivolous young men by forcing them to a declaration of intentions on the third visit. The matrimonial trust was organized at Miss Mabel Carpel's house, in Stanford avenue, the other evening.

An English war correspondent in a Cuban prison sent for a tailor to make him a suit of clothes, but on the arrival of the man of the shears the prisoner found he could only consult with him through the bars, and had to stand quite close to them to be measured. In a few days, however, the tailor again appeared on the scene with the garments cut out and pinned together for fitting on, and this he accomplished by stretching his arms through the window bars as before until the "fit" was to his mind correct. When the correspondent came to wear this extraordinary suit a short time after he found it most satisfactory and well fitting—so much so that it is being worn in London now with much pride.

An extraordinary novel is about to be published by Dr. William A. Hammond, formerly surgeon general of the United States Army. Its title is, "The Son of Perdition." The hero is Judas Iscariot and the heroine is Mary Magdalene, with whom Judas is represented as being in love. Judas, as described in the novel, was a rich man, holding office of great importance under the Roman government. He possessed a peculiar power, the nature of which he himself did not understand, but which we often today would call mesmeric. By means of this power he was able to influence the Emperor Tiberius to appoint Pontius Pilate to the governorship of Judea. Incidentally, the interesting fact is brought out that, as developed by Dr. Hammond's researches, Pontius Pilate was a Spaniard. Judas is described as a particularly handsome man. It is on account of Judas' love for Mary, and not for the thirty pieces of silver, that he betrays the Lord, according to the novel.

The weakness of the present microscope alone, it is suspected, prevents man from discovering the mystery of life. That was what Prof. Rudolph Virchow, the greatest living biologist, stated in effect at a recent meeting in London. It is proved, according to Prof. Virchow, that all life arises from the cell. Within the cell can be discerned a nucleus, but beyond that the strongest microscope is yet unable to penetrate. That is where the mystery of life lies. At the same time Prof. Virchow dwells on the strange similarity between the cell from which all life arises and the microbe, from which death comes. When science penetrates the mystery of life it will also learn the secret of death.

CARRYING heavy burdens, washing, ironing, scrubbing and other laborious duties are productive of an enormous amount of suffering among women who are already weak and prostrated by the ravages of female diseases. The performance of these heavy labors is obligatory to many women, but the suffering is not. This feature of the household burdens may soon be removed if women will only take the trouble to learn how. A few bottles of Chicago is doing a giant work at no end of cost in the abolition of grade crossings. It was begun in 1892, when the Illinois Central elevated its ten tracks on the lake front at a cost of $2,000,000. By June of this year nineteen miles of main track had been elevated, at an aggregate cost of $6,000,000, and eighty-nine grade crossings have been thereby abolished. There is a good deal to do yet, as within the corporate limits there are 115 linear miles of track, not counting the multiplication of them, sometimes tenfold at terminals, and there are still nearly 200 grade crossings, some of them at points of crowding traffic. The aggregate outlay up to the close of the present year is expected to be about $9,000,000. By the year 1900 the work bids fair to be substantially completed.

The Philadelphia Ledger says: "The announcement that a patent on diphtheria antitoxin has been granted by the United States patent office has created great astonishment in medical circles. It had come to be looked upon like quinine or morphia, which any one who chose could manufacture, and which every physician could use at his pleasure. It has called forth many earnest protests, many claiming that Prof. Emil Behring, the patentee, was not the first to use the serum. The patent question is not likely to interfere with its use, for its value is now so well established in the treatment of diphtheria that it will be prescribed and used. H. K. Mulford, president of the H. K. Mulford company of Philadelphia, who are the largest producers of antitoxin in this country, said to a Ledger reporter on Saturday that there was no probability that the patent office rejected Behring's application five times, the last rejection by the special examiner being dated March 19, 1898. Four days later the board of appeals allowed the claim because the process referred to has been instrumental in very much reducing the mortality from diphtheria."

The Rice Market.

The following report of the condition of the rice market for the week ending November 10, is sent out by Messrs. Dan Talnage's Sons & Co. of New York:

The week opened at an enlarging pace. In the first half the sales ran quite up to that of the preceding week but toward the close, as is usual around election or any other holiday, the demand gradually tapered off.

Prices continue strong with upward tendency, as all desirable styles of foreign are largely sold ahead; some deliveries not promised before week after next. Domestic is coming forward in more liberal way but firmly held under prescribed limits of shippers.

Advices from the South are cheerful. Charleston reports enlarging volume and improved character of receipts together with widening inquiry. New Orleans movement, as heretofore, is far ahead of last year; all mills sold out daily.

Cables and correspondence from abroad note rapidly depleting stocks of the finer sorts, with prospect of steadily hardening values as the season progresses.

Talnage, New Orleans, telegraphs the Louisiana crop movement to date: Receipts 365,450 sacks; last year (inclusive of mount carried over), 262,900 sacks. Sales, cleaned (estimated) 89,400 barrels; last year, 39,400 barrels. Good inquiry at former range.

Talnage, Charleston, telegraphs Carolina crop movement to date: Receipts, cleaned, 10,180 barrels. Sales, 9120 barrels. Enlarged receipts and inquiry. Market firm.

No Wonder He is Nervous.

From the New York Sun.
A lieutenant in the navy has been waiting anxiously for the arrival here of his trunk, which he sent by rail from a Southern port, and every time a newsboy shouts "Extra!" his nervous system receives a shock. There are possibilities in that trunk of a serious character. Because of illness he was forced to leave his ship in a hurry and proceed North. One of his friends volunteered to pack his trunk and send it to him by rail from the first port touched. The lieutenant received a letter several days ago from his friend saying that the trunk was on its way. "In packing your trunk," he wrote, "I placed in it a loaded three-pounder shell, which, if the trunk is handled properly, should reach you in safety and prove a valuable souvenir to some of your friends. If, on the contrary, the baggage smashers take such liberties with your trunk as they did with mine, they will bring swift punishment on themselves."

The shell has not exploded yet, but the owner's nervous system will not settle back to its normal condition until his trunk reaches him.

Water Consumers.

It is impossible to give the city sufficient fire pressure while your service pipes are in a leaking condition, and where such pipes are found water service will be promptly shut off, and will also be discontinued where pipes are found sprinkling the streets or irrigating vegetable gardens.
